regarding TIER 2018-01254, it appears that "Atkinson" refers to  Atkinson. Don't know how much that will help Might help more if I could type...

BTW, I think that if we can't identify responsive documents by way of ordinary indexing information in our systems (that is, we have to start actually looking into document content as part of the basic search), we may be extending beyond "reasonable search." I know you guys always try to do the best you can.... but no need to go to extraordinary efforts to examine docs that could, maybe, be responsive unless there is a pretty clear and likely connection obvious right up front. We don't need to cross the line from "search" to "research."
