2017 NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE SUPERIOR SERVICE MEDAL RECIPIENT

I am pleased to announce that Dr. Stewart Cameron has been awarded the 2017 National Intelligence Superior Service Medal. This award was established to recognize superior service over a sustained period to the Intelligence Community and the United States. The award was presented by the Director of National Intelligence at a ceremony on 11 January 2017.

Dr. Cameron was recognized for his contributions to ensuring our overhead intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance systems are available and able to provide support to national policy makers and warfighters in the presence of those wishing to deny it. Dr. Cameron has advanced technology, increased analytical capability, and gained much greater commitment and advocacy for space resilience in the Department of Defense, the Intelligence Community, and the Congress.

Please join me in congratulating Dr. Stewart Cameron on his selection for this prestigious award.
