7. SUMMARY CONTINUED:

BACKGROUND:

(U) Description of symbolism on the back of the TDW Commander's Coin:

- a. The bezel on the front and back of the coin is meant to resemble an antenna radome and represent the satellite operational mission we support at ADF-C
- b. The black background represents space and the sacrifice and dedication each member of the squadron
- c. The globe and silver dots/traces represent the Squadron's expansive mission to connect the organization not just across our nation, but throughout the world. The silver dots do not represent any specific locations
- d. The words "presented by the commander for Excellence" are in silver to reflect the Air Force core values
- e. The 4 stars represent the Squadron and its 3 detachments. The office symbol of the squadron and 3 detachments are also explicitly spelled out: TDW, TDWD, TDWO, and TDWW
- f. There is no other symbolism on the coin

MEMORANDUM FOR DIRECTOR, NATIONAL RECONNAISSANCE OFFICE

FROM: COMM/NISP [Redacted] TDW

(b)(3)

SUBJECT: Public Release of Technology Operations Division West Coin Logo and Design

1. In accordance with National Reconnaissance Office Directive 100-26, Memorabilia, 1 August 2013, National Reconnaissance Office (NRO), Technology Operations Division West (TDW) requests approval of the attached coin design.
2. The TDW Commander's coin is being developed as a means for the TDW Commander to recognize government employees for specific instances of outstanding performance as per Air Force tradition.

Coin Front

- a. This logo was developed to reflect the squadron and its three detachments and has already been approved through the NRO. This design is being used as is on the front of the Commander's coin and there is no change to this logo.
- b. The bezel on the front and back of the coin is meant to resemble an antenna radome and represent the satellite operational mission we support at ADF-C.

Coin Back

- a. The black background represents space and the sacrifice and dedication each member of the squadron possesses.
- b. The globe and silver dots/traces represent the Squadron's expansive mission to connect the organization not just across our nation, but throughout the world. The silver dots do not represent any specific locations.
- c. The words "presented by the commander for Excellence" are in silver to reflect the Air Force core values.
- d. The 4 stars represent the Squadron and the 3 detachments. The office symbol of the squadron and its 3 detachments are also explicitly spelled out: TDW, TDWD, TDWO, and TDWW.
- e. There is no other symbolism not already on the original approved logo.
