The NRO-129 mission is represented by the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse. Dating from the first century of the Common Era, the horsemen—symbolizing conquest, war, famine, and death—have been seen as heralds of an age in which evil is punished and justice prevails. While popular culture views the apocalypse as the cataclysmic end of the world, the original Greek term invokes the final revelation of knowledge – a new dawn ushering in an era of truth and justice. By choosing this logo, the NRO summons these four riders to deny our enemies sanctuary. The message is clear— our time has come.

NOTE: The NROL-129 logo is one logo with four mini-logos inside it. For reference, attached are enlarged copies of each mini logo.
