26 March 1956

MEMORANDUM FOR: Colonel Turbume

SUBJECT: B-W Responsibility in the ARS Program

1. I note with some concern Dr. Rame's letter of March 15, 1956 to General Schriever in which he enclosed a rough draft of a letter, for General Schriever's signature, which, if bought, would create what I believe to be an unworkable arrangement for prosecuting the W317L program.

2. Specifically, Dr. Rame proposed that a portion of the overall program, involving design, fabrication and testing of an orbiting vehicle, be handled by B-W in the same manner as the W3151 and W3151A programs. I believe that such a piecemeal-parceling out of the total job would be a serious, if not fatal, error.

3. I believe that if we are given authority to proceed with the development of a complete Reconnaissance Systems, such as described in SR 9, our first and most important step should be to designate a prime contractor to assume systems responsibility. I do not believe that B-W is qualified, either in number of available people, or in background, to handle this job.

4. To charge B-W with the task of developing and launching a vehicle independent of the overall program would be to accept the possibility (I think probability) that the vehicle would have to be completely re-designed and re-developed later under the direction of the weapons system contractor in order that it be compatible with the reconnaissance equipment it must carry.

5. I further sense in the suggestion that B-W handle the vehicle an entire leading to a pitch for complete systems management as soon as B-W can show a capability to handle it.

6. Until B-W is definitely removed as a competition to Lockheed, Martin and RCA for systems management, I am withholding circulation of all ARS reports to B-W, except those required by them to answer specific technical questions I have asked them. If this is contrary to your wishes, I would appreciate a directive in writing to the contrary.
